Jerusalem A Fortress

The dispossession of the banks, the numerous business and law offices and shops of all descriptions in the centre of Jerusalem, as well as the transfer of the General Post Office to the former Post Office warehouses in a dingy side street behind the Jaffa Road are now complete, and the "fortress of Jerusalem" is virtually in existence.

Nothing more could symbolize the present police administration of this Mandated territory than the gloomy appearance of what was formerly the crowded, busy mercantile heart of the city. The tall stone buildings, behind innumerable coils of barbed wire, and guarded by armoured cars at either end of this section of the Jaffa Road, as well as the armed sentries, present a dead face to hurrying passers-by. In this area, the Government and Army offices are to be concentrated.

One report current is that the King David Hotel is to be entirely evacuated, by Government and Army headquarters and will have to undergo radical repairs, as the foundations were affected, first, by the terrorist explosion, and subsequently by demolition of dangerous hanging bits of structure undertaken by the Royal Engineers.

Meanwhile, hundreds of shopkeepers and tenants of offices are still seeking alternative permanent accommodation after their [illegible] eviction.

A [illegible] was inflicted [illegible] of Jerusalem last [illegible] promises were [illegible] security measure deriving directly from the crime committed at the King David Hotel", according to the London Jewish Chronicle.

He regretted that the measure had caused inconvenience to law-abiding citizens and said he expected Jewish institutions and funds to play their due part in the reaccommodation of those affected."

Urges Dominion Status For Palestine

Baron Strabolgi, Labor leader in the House of Lords, urged in New York that Palestine receive self-governing dominion status within the British Commonwealth of Nations to solve the knotty problem now posed by the Holy Land.

Describing the Palestine problem as "tragic", Lord Strabolgi asserted that the Labor party "is trying to find a solution to it." He held that the British feel there should be more aid from the United States in solving the "mischief," which he attributed to the previous Conservative governments and the White Paper of 1939.

Lord Strabolgi declared that equal-rights, self-governing dominion status for Palestine is favored by many Arab workers and numerous Zionists, adding that the London Conference is "a joke" since no Palestinian Arabs or Jews are present.

Ultimately, Lord Strabolgi contended, Palestine should come under the control of the United Nations. Discussing the new world organizations, Lord Strabolgi expressed the hope that it would soon have an armed force with which it could support its decisions; that it would assume control of atomic energy, and that it would rule international marine bottlenecks that might prove to be threats to world peace.

In this last connection, Lord Strabolgi urged the United Nations to take control of the Straits of Malacca, the Suez Canal, the [illegible] to take [illegible] ...ropean [illegible] ...ould be [illegible] third World War, asserting that [illegible] on the Continent prohibited both Russia and Great Britain from waging an aggressive war, since occupation troops must be fed in spite of atomic attacks. He said he was confident that the United States would not start a war.

One Out Of Every Six Survivors Is On The Move

Another winter of terrifying distress is a certainty for nearly 600,000 surviving Jews in three countries in Eastern Europe—Rumania, Hungary and Poland—unless means are found to send them far greater assistance than the large-scale help they are already receiving, Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, director of the overseas relief activities of the Joint Distribution Committee, stated in New York at the national headquarters of the $100,000,000 United Jewish Appeal for Refugees, Overseas Needs and Palestine.

"Rumania", said Dr. Schwartz, "has suffered a disastrous crop failure, and food prices in that country where there are 335,000 Jews, are soaring. In Hungary, with 200,000 Jews, who have received well over $4,000,000 in J.D.C. aid this year, the recent stabilization of currency has halved the value of the dollar, making it necessary for the J.D.C. to increase its appropriation from $500,000 in August to $750,000 in September. In Poland, with approximately 130,000 Jews today, rampant anti-Semitism is cutting down opportunity for Jews to rehabilitate themselves and build a decent future. Approximately 80,000 Jews have fled Poland since the Kielce pogrom on July 4th, in an effort to reach the American military zones of Germany and Austria.

"The Jews of Eastern Europe are continuously on the move," Dr. Schwartz said. "One out of every six of the 1,600,000 survivors on the [illegible] ...ears. They [illegible] ...nts and weary to be met with anti-Semitism and outbreaks of violence which were uncontrolled, in spite of the efforts of a sympathetic government. Scarcely pausing in their native land thousands of these returnees continued their migration out of Poland in an effort to reach the American zones of Germany and Austria. The movement is still continuing and it is impossible to estimate how many will leave Poland in the months to come.

He added that 16,000 Jews were repatriated to Rumania this spring also from the Soviet Union. The returnees, together with the Jews who have fled from Eastern Europe, bring the number who have shifted their abodes to more than 200,000.

"In regard to the migrations of Jews throughout Europe," Dr. Schwartz said, "the J.D.C. is helping to relieve hardships and suffering for the people in flight by supplying food, clothing, medical care to those in transit and by establishing emergency reception centres along the routes. It is also dealing with governments on the question of infiltrees, but has in no sense organized migration anywhere."

Rothschild Asks New Hope For Palestine

Lord Rothschild, speaking in the recent House of Lords debate on Palestine, said that he had never been connected with any Zionist organization.

Referring to the mentality of the Jews in Palestine and the causes of that mentality, he drew attention to the agelong persecution of the Jews, and mentioned the recent Kielce pogrom, one of the acts which, he said, Cardinals had refused to condemn. He also pointed out that most Jews in Palestine had relatives among the 6,000,000 Jews massacred by Hitler.

Lord Rothschild instanced the case of his own aunt, a blind old lady of 75, who was clubbed to death by the S.S. on a railway station outside an extermination camp.

After referring to the White Paper as an addition to the intolerable suffering of the Jews, Lord Rothschild spoke of the Jewish war effort and contrasted it with the Arab record; the Rashid Ali rebellion in Iraq; the delivery of the defence plans for Egypt to the Axis by the Egyptian Minister of Defence in 1941; and the fact that the Mufti, who had trained the Bosnian S.S., was an honoured guest of a King who had always expressed his sympathies with the Arab cause, and in whose country British soldiers had been killed in bomb outrages.

Lord Rothschild went on to discuss the Anglo-American Committee's recommendations [illegible] and the need for [illegible] against marauding Arabs, was described by the speaker. "Palestine," he said, "for whatever reason, is the only country where the Jews, after 2,000 years, have been able to get back to their real business of tilling the soil and living on the land."

All the factors he had mentioned, continued Lord Rothschild, had produced [illegible] despair and absolute [illegible] the Jews of [illegible] London Jewry [illegible] ...ing [illegible] Rothschild [illegible] Jewry [illegible] ...r of the [illegible] Monsieur [illegible] France who [illegible] capitulation and fatally betrayed by the Vichyites but had refused to give information about his colleagues.

They were fortunate, he declared, that they found it difficult to appreciate the horrors and miseries that went on in the world. They would say, "How terrible," and then forget. But, he stated, "not one Jew in Palestine forgets one of these episodes—forgets that the woman in the next settlement had her one-year-old daughter roasted alive in front of her eyes. And when the scales seemed once more to be weighted against them, the last sermons through stopped, they said: 'There is no hope; therefore let us die fighting.'"

No Country Will Take Refugees For At Least Two Years

An aide memoire prepared by the United Nations secretariat and read to the Economic and Social Council at Lake Success, N.Y., dimmed the chances for early resettlement abroad of a substantial number of the 850,000 refugees and displaced persons in Europe who cannot or will not return to the countries of their origin.

The Soviet delegate, Nicolai I. Feonov, announced that Russia could not accept the principle of compulsory contribution to the operational budget of the International Refugee Organization. The delegate of India, Sir Girja Shankar Bajpai, also said that his country could not undertake any financial obligation to that body.

Pursuant to a suggestion by F. H. La Guardia, Director-General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, Dr. Charles Malik, delegate of Lebanon, proposed that the Council cable all nations of the world to ask, by categories, how many refugees they would accept and how soon the refugees could begin to arrive.

Sir Rafael Cilento, director of the United Nations Division of Refugees, presented an aide memoire outlining replies received from twenty-three nations of forty-one solicited by UNRRA on May 29, requesting specific proposals for the solution of the problem of non-repatriable persons. Eighteen nations did not acknowledge receipt of the latter.

The aide memoire, [illegible] a summary [illegible] ...ments [illegible] that [illegible] ...ould be [illegible] ...ble to find refuge in Palestine.

Dr. Steinberg, who recently returned from consultations in Paris London and Amsterdam, also declared that the Netherlands Government was "actively interested" in the colonization and development of Dutch Guiana, possibly by European Jews.

The replies to both inquiries clearly indicated that unless nations were willing to alter immigration policies, the problem might soon prove unsurmountable.

No country indicated unconditional willingness to take refugees or displaced persons. Most of the replies indicated that in the near future, in some cases for at least two years, no sizable number of such individuals could be accepted.

As a whole, the replies painted a dour picture of the chances for effective action on the problem with the urgency it demands, unless drastic alterations of national immigration policies are made. The United States expressed willingness to discuss the problem with the UNRRA Director General.

Typical replies were the following:

Australia said it would be at least two years before non-British immigration could start. Brazil, which originally said it might take 100,000 to 200,000 immigrants, "has modified the proposition that it could take, unconditionally, a number anywhere [illegible] that [illegible]

Trans-Shipment To Cyprus Is Seen

Six hundred Jewish men, women and children who had arrived at Palestine without authorization on the 300-ton wooden sailing vessel Palmach were transported to Cyprus in the 10,000-ton British Liberty ship Vigour.

Trans-shipment, with no [illegible] by shooting and [illegible] ...ing, thirty-two young men and women jumped overboard in a vain attempt to swim ashore from the vessel, which stood two miles out in Haifa Bay.

Army authorities called this trans-shipment Operation Bolton, the commanding officer was Brig. Michael Gruban of the Polish First Infantry Division, who first arrived Operation Bolton on August 13, when Jewish refugees were first sent to Cyprus under the British Government's policy of the admission of unauthorized Jewish visitors.

THE TRUTH WILL OUT: WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE AND AFTER THE PARTITION PROPOSAL

By Dr. Leon Feuer, Vice-President, Zionist Organization of America

Endorsement by the President of the United States of the British "Grady Report" would have constituted a major setback to Zionist hopes. From that defeat there might not soon have been any recovery. It was a defeat averted by the narrowest of margins. The President was in an understandable mood to get the Palestine question off his desk as expeditiously as possible. Newspaper hints about what had transpired in interviews with Congressmen and Senators indicated a growing impatience on his part. A President is only human, and Palestine is only one of a number of international questions which have been agitating him. The Secretary of State, Mr. Byrnes, had been persuaded for reasons best known to himself to go along with the British on the Federalization scheme. Apparently he had succeeded in convincing the President to do the same.

This was the situation which confronted Zionist representatives in Washington as of the last week in July and the first week in August. It was a risky job and it took steady nerve on the part of American Zionist spokesmen to continue to bring pressure to bear on the White House. But it had to be done. It was successfully and quickly done. This is neither the time nor the occasion to detail the process by which the result was achieved. It should be said for the record, however, that it was effected by a demonstration of devotion to the cause on the part both of leaders and of rank-and-file of which American Zionism can justly be proud.

Much to the consternation of the British who imagined that the situation was well under control, Mr. Truman recalled the Grady mission and summoned the American members of the Anglo-American Committee (whose months of arduous labors, travels and unanimous findings had been blithely set aside by the "experts" in London) to Washington for consultation. This action subjected the President to a truly shameful barrage of nasty criticism and half-veiled insults on the part of British editorialists, commentators and so-called "unofficial quarters." The British Government could barely conceal its anger and sense of frustration at having such a neatly laid plot blow up in its face. One of the charges which was levelled against Mr. Truman, funny if it were not so tragically ironical, was that he was delaying the admission of 100,000 Jews into Palestine.

After carefully weighing all of the possibilities in the situation, those who were directing the American Zionist strategy in Washington came to the conclusion that the next immediate step was to persuade our government (1) to continue to press for the immediate entry of the 100,000; and (2) to inform the British that while the United States could not assent to the proposals brought back by the Grady mission, this government was willing and eager to continue the negotiations with a view toward arriving at a just and durable solution. It was known tha the American members of the Anglo-American Committee, who were now in Washington conferring on the question, were strongly in favor of such a policy. To put it another way, this was a strategy aimed at giving priority to the desperate needs of the D.P.'s while at the same time avoiding any bargaining away of Zionist aims.

It was believed that the most effective strategy was to keep the [illegible] but one that had a fair chance of success. It represented the publicly expressed views of the President. It had the support of the American members of the Anglo-American Committee, whose views were very influential with the President. It was at least an open question whether England, so desperately anxious for American support on the international scene, would or could continue indefinitely to be obdurate on the Palestine issue.

In the meanwhile, the Executive of the Jewish Agency was meeting in Paris. We were informed that an emissary of the Executive in the person of Dr. Nahum Goldmann was on his way to Washington bringing their decision on policy. Upon his arrival, Dr. Goldmann stated that the decision was publicly to reject the Federalization plan, but to take steps privately to inform the American Government that the Agency was ready to negotiate on the basis of "a viable Jewish State in an adequate part of Palestine."

Goldmann made his first report of the Paris proceedings at an informal meeting of those who had been working in Washington. They discussed the situation with him thoroughly and carefully. Quite apart from individual views as to the wisdom or desirability of the proposal itself, all were unanimous in feeling that it would be politically dangerous and self-defeating to have the partition proposal come directly from the Agency. It was felt that if it had to be Partition ultimately, the way to get it, perhaps the only way to get it, was that it should be negotiated with us, not originated by us.

Dr. Goldmann apparently agreed. At a formal meeting the next day of the Executive of the American Zionist Emergency Council, this line of strategy was unanimously adopted as official. There was also adopted a clear directive to the effect that all negotiations with top government officials were to be carried on jointly by Dr. Goldmann and the Chairman of the Executive of the Council, Dr. Silver. That Dr. Goldmann accepted this decision and agreed to act in accordance with it, although there was no police power to enforce it, is as much a part of the record as the decision itself.

It is now public knowledge that prior to the meeting just alluded to, Dr. Goldmann had already been to see the Acting Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, and had submitted the Partition proposal through him to the United States Government on behalf of the Jewish Agency. He failed to disclose this at the meeting. He did not see fit to take his Zionist colleagues into his confidence. Subsequently he saw the other two members of the United States Cabinet Committee, Secretaries Snyder and Patterson. He did not see them, as instructed, in the company of Dr. Silver. On his visit to Patterson he did have a companion, but not Dr. Silver- Judge Proskauer. If this is puzzling to the reader, he can well imagine what a mystery it presented to the members of the Executive of the American Zionist Emergency Council.

The upshot of Dr. Goldmann's unilateral action was the statement released from the White House on the eve of President Truman's departure from his vacation. That this statement was a let-down is describing it mildly. It declared that this Government is unable to agree with the latest proposals of the British Government, but has no new proposals of its own to offer; that it was transmitting to London certain proposals which it had received from the Jewish Agency with the hope that some agreement might be reached at the forthcoming conferences of the British, the Arabs and the Jews;

There was even one story to the effect that Judge Proskauer might take Dr. Silver's place on the Executive. One can only express the hope that all this does not mean what it seems to mean. It will be a black day for our movement when loyalty to the Biltmore Programme and basic Zionist principles is branded as "extremism" or when the head of the American Jewish Committee becomes more acceptable to the Jewish Agency than the head of the Zionist Emergency Council.

At this juncture, no Zionist can help but be deeply troubled by some disturbing questions that naturally suggest themselves on the basis of current reports. Will representatives of the Jewish Agency go to London after all in total disregard of the fact that even their minimal conditions for participation have not been met? What kind of bargaining position will they then occupy? Having taken the initiative in proposing Partition, does that not then become the maximum Zionist demand and therefore subject to further whittling down in the process of negotiation?

How far are certain members of the Agency prepared to go in this process of compromise and retreat? Assuming that ultimately Partition would have been the price of a Jewish State, anyway, would not the negotiating position now have been stronger if the representative of the Agency who was sent to this country had been a little less hasty in showing his hand?

Time alone will prove whether his strategy was wise or unwise. In the meantime it does seem clear that some ground has been lost in the United States which must somehow or other be recovered. Our government now has a perfect alibi for inaction: there is the London Conference in which the United States will not even be represented by an observer. It has bowed itself out of the picture. That is a pity after the tremendous efforts which American Jews have expended during the past three years. It means that there may be a great deal of extra work.

Lawyer, Leader, Rabbi's Son

Elkan Nathan Adler, eighty-five, international lawyer and champion of the Jewish cause in many European countries, died at his London home.

Dr. Adler was the collector of the library of Hebraic and Judaic volumes and manuscripts acquired in 1923 by the Jewish Theological Seminary of New York. Consisting of 40,000 volumes and 4,000 ancient manuscripts, the collection was described by Professor Alexander Marx, librarian of the seminary, as "the greatest Jewish library assembled in all history."

The collection was amassed by Dr. Adler in his travels as a senior member of Adler and Perowne, solicitors, of London and Paris. He was vice-president of the International Jewish Conference at Berlin in 1891 and 1903, and was a former president of the Jewish Historical Society of England and the Union of Jewish Literary Societies.

Dr. Adler was the third and youngest son of Dr. Nathan Marcus Adler, Chief Rabbi of England. One of his brothers, Dr. Hermann Adler, succeeded their father as Chief Rabbi.

Dr. Adler contributed articles to the American Jewish Historical Society, and was the author of "Hebrew Elegies on English Monarchs," "The Persian Jews; Their Books and Ritual," "The Inquisition in Peru," "A Gazeteer of Hebrew Printing" and "A History of Jews in London."

both to the overall policies of our Government and to the fundamental wisdom of the Canadian people.

And it holds out a glorious promise for the future.

But to make that promise come true in the days ahead we shall have to continue to live up to our principles of moderation. We shall have to continue to think, act and live—moderately.

To give in to the natural desire for immediate enjoyment of everything and anything presently in short supply can result only in inflation and disaster.

This is not our way.

The House of Seagram suggests that each day's enjoyment be moderate so that the rich promise of Canada's tomorrow can be fulfilled . . . to the full.

Lehman Stresses Need Overseas

Emphasizing that the need for relief among displaced Jews is "[illegible]" Mr. Lehman declared: "[illegible] as we are giving [illegible] it is not, and neither are [illegible]." He spoke before 700 volunteer leaders at a rally of the Joint Distribution Committee's Supplies for Overseas Survivors at the Temple Rodeph Shalom, 7 East Eighty-third Street, in New York.

Mr. Lehman, who was the first director-general of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and is now the New York Democratic candidate for United States Senator, voiced his regret that the work of UNRRA was ended [illegible] that the demands for [illegible] before and the means to satisfy even the most elemental demands will be totally inadequate."

Recalling that he had been abroad four times to study the plight of war victims, he declared: "I can only say that the situation of those people is practically indescribable. It just cannot be visualized by those who have not seen them and even some of us who have witnessed these horrors with our own eyes are prone to let those memories dim."

"I have seen little babies die before my eyes of malnutrition and starvation. And they are still dying of starvation. I have seen men and women who have gone through the horrors of hell and whose only hope is to leave the cemeteries of Europe for the land of promise and hope in Palestine and elsewhere."

Mr. Lehman said that he could not place enough emphasis on the phrase, "An ounce of [illegible] is not enough."

"Try as I may, I can't picture the degree of suffering, both physical and spiritual that peoples overseas are undergoing, particularly the Jews," he said. "Instead of what I'd hoped would be the case after the war, that the remnants of the Jewish population, which has suffered so much at the hands of the Nazis, would be accepted and welcomed because of what they have undergone, in many parts of the world anti-Semitism, persecution and discrimination exist even greater than before."

UNTRAINED MAN REVIVES CHILD AFTER TIMELY RESCUE
NELSON GETZ WINS Dow Award

THE DOW AWARD
is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily newspapers.
The DOW AWARD

Driving his truck over a bridge near Moorefield, Ont., Nelson Getz suddenly jammed on his brakes. A small crowd was excitedly peering down into the Conestogo River. Sensing that something was wrong, Getz sprang from his truck... and then, seeing a child's body half submerged in the water under the bridge, he quickly leapt in. Fully clothed, he swam to the drowning 4-year-old girl . . . and brought her back to shore. She was unconscious . . . and Getz thought she was dead. Nevertheless, he commenced applying artificial respiration . . . and, although he had never practiced it before, was soon rewarded by the sound of the child's voice—at first a groan — and then a very welcome cry. The youngster's life had been saved.

For his cool, quick thinking and presence of mind, we are proud to present The Dow Award to Nelson Getz of Kitchener, Ontario.

Look Back To The Rock

Excerpt From An Address At Dropsie College For Hebrew And Cognate Learning

By Herbert H. Lehman

The purpose to which this College, now in a sense mine as well as yours, is dedicated—the study and dissemination of knowledge of the Hebrew Scriptures and the vast worlds of learning of which the Scriptures are the centre — seems to me more important and more urgent today than ever before. Even in the peaceful and comparatively quiet days of our youth, it must have been apparent to the more thoughtful among us that our democracy could survive only on the foundations laid in Scriptures. The principles of human brotherhood proclaimed in Genesis, and repeated in every book of the Prophets, are basic to America and to the world. During the past eighteen years when my time has been wholly occupied with public affairs, the conviction has continually grown on me that America must turn for guidance, in the great crises which confront our generation, to the Scriptures and the traditions founded on them. Both as Governor of my state, and as Director of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, I learned how without the guidance of those astonishingly profound insights which the Prophets offered, all planning for the future must be inadequate.

The moment of history, finally, in which the late President Roosevelt reminded us, the first chapter of Genesis, with its declaration that man was made in the image of God. The Bible insisted that all men are alike in their basic divinity. Wherever this truth is recognized, men are drawn together. Where, as was the case in Nazi Germany, it is rejected, human life degenerates, and indescribable suffering ensues for all mankind. Feeding the hungry of the world, saving multitudes from death by starvation, is for us, the disciples of Scripture, not charity, but duty. To deny ourselves some comfort so that others may have their basic necessities is not a matter which ought to be left to philanthropic and sentimental appeals. It is the right of the hungry to be fed by those who have food, and it is the duty of those who have food to share their surplus, and even their basic goods with those who need it more.

The men whose hands are stretched out to us are, according to Scriptures, our brothers, whatever their background, creed or nationality. And in thinking of them, we must also think of the verse, "And if thy brother become poor and fallen in decay, with thee, then thou shalt relieve him; yea though he be a stranger or a sojourner, that he may live with thee." I do not know of any work which we can read with greater profit today, which would help us more completely to understand our duty to ourselves and our fellow-men than Scripture.

In these days of disappointment, sorrow and widespread tribulation, we need the Scriptures not only for our guidance and edification, but also as a source of comfort. Such was the purpose of the great unknown prophet of the Jewish people of his generation, "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, saith the Lord" needs to be heard by masses of men of all faiths. Frightful as the bereavement of the Jewish people has been during the past ten years, it is only part of the sad lot that has befallen all men in our time. The people of Europe need comfort as they look forward from the bleak present to the hardly less bleak future. And we, too, the people of the United States, need prophetic comfort and consolation as we watch the agony of a world eager for a better civilization, yet apprehensive of the developments of tomorrow.

To make the Scriptures vivid to us, we need to know more than their literal meaning. Obviously, the history of the age which gave them birth, the state of the society in which the Prophets labored, are all necessary studies for us. Perhaps in pursuing these studies we may even discover what made the Prophets what they were, and why to this day they remain unique. Perhaps we may recognize how, addressing only such small groups in small communities, they could yet exert so profound an influence on history. Perhaps we may discover why, despite their insight, wisdom and generosity of outlook, their ideas still seem far from realization.

In this College, the Bible is by no means the only part of Jewish literature which receives the attention of scholars. The study of rabbinic lore is no less important in our time than that of the Bible, for the world still fails to understand the meaning and significance of rabbinic Judaism, even when men rise to an understanding of the meaning of the Scriptures themselves.

I am glad, too, that in this College Jewish history is being further studied and analyzed. The centuries which separate us from the first of the patriarchs, Abraham, constitute an experience remarkable not only for the Jewish people but for all the world. That is why of all histories, the history of the Jewish people is the most universally studied. There can be few examples of such tenacity of faith, courage, determination, and vindication of the principle of human love, as is offered by this long and tragic history. I do not know that our young people can do better in these days of trial and anxiety than to take the advice of the Prophet Isaiah, and look back "to the rock whence we have been hewn."

[illegible] history—the persecution to which they were exposed in antiquity when Antiochus Epiphanes tried to extirpate them; the days of the destruction of their holy city and Temple; their sufferings in the Middle Ages. How hard it must have seemed in the days of those great persecutions to believe that the people of Israel would arise from the dust and win new strength from the very trials through which it passed!

Surely the genius of this people will also carry it through the severe trials of today. Surely we will live to see the day when the destruction in Europe will be offset by a development of a vital dynamic Judaism in America. Surely this College and its sister institutions will yet produce new scholars to take the place of those who have perished at the hand of tyranny. Surely the strength of a revitalized American Jewry will also bring new life to the ravaged communities of the rest of the world. And surely, too, as the history of Israel is more carefully explored and understood, the understanding of this remarkable experience will help strengthen the weak of all creeds and all peoples.

Just as the Negro slave before the Civil War often found relief from his suffering in the Psalms of David; just as the founders of our Republic took courage in their peril when they thought of the miracles of the Exodus and the crossing of the Red Sea; just as we in our day, when it seemed that the whole world would become a victim of Nazi tyranny, found new faith and hope in thinking of the deliverance which God brought to ancient Israel; so we may well expect that our children and the children of many other peoples will, in studying the history of Israel, discover new truths about human life, and win new confidence in the ultimate triumph of the right and in the strength of the spirit even though it be oppressed.

Fight At British Consulate

Jewish pickets and other demonstrators forming a crowd of more than a thousand people swarmed around the downtown office building housing the British Consulate in Los Angeles recently in protest against British policy on Palestine and particularly against the detention of Jews in the disorders there.

Police backfired their motorcycles into the crowd to open access for tenants of the building, and there were brief fisticuffs when an anti-Zionist carrying a placard infiltrated into the picket line.

The melee ended with the presentation of a petition urging admission of Jewish displaced persons into Palestine and release of the "2,000 innocent hostages," which the consulate said would be forwarded to the British Embassy in Washington.

The one anti-picketer, who was identified by police as Earl C. Craig, chairman of an organization called the Public Affairs Forum, and who later called newspapers to emphasize that he was not an adherent of Gerald L. K. Smith, isolationist leader, carried a sign: "Americans Beware of These Palestine Agitators."

bound vessel took ninety minutes.

An official statement describing the remarkable scene in Haifa Bay said the swimmers were singing Hebrew patriotic songs and later battled the troops who tried to pull them out of the water. Some of them were powerful swimmers and covered a quarter of a mile before launches brought them into landing craft. Some tried to jump into the water again. They said they would rather drown than be taken from Palestine.

ing as we did against Hitler."

After hoping that the Government's proposals might produce a new hope in Palestine, Lord Rothschild concluded by stating that his grandfather was the first Jew allowed to sit in the House of Lords and he therefore felt it his duty to explain something of the trials and torments of his coreligionists in Palestine.

CANADA'S No. 1 CITIZEN shapes his future...

these five ways...

Canada's future is in the hands of her people . . .
That future is threatened by the menace of inflation . . .
Canada's bulwark against this menace is the steadfast performance of her No. 1 citizens.
Here is the No. 1 citizen's five-point programme of personal finances:

1. Hold on to my Victory Bonds and Certificates.
2. Buy only those goods which are in fair supply and save my money for the day when goods now in short supply will be readily available.
3. Avoid black market purchases.
4. Keep up my insurance.
5. Build up my savings account.

These five points mean conservation—the first requisite for personal security—the first requisite for national security.
When you shape your future on these five points, you shape the future of the nation.
